What's Happening

First of all, here is our calendar for the next few months. Note: Some special events will be scheduled on the open days, and dates of special events may be adjusted as circumstances warrant.

Match Schedule

- 📅 First Saturday: Rim Fire Bench Rest
- 📅 Second Saturday: Action Shooting
- 📅 Third Saturday: Center Fire Bench Rest
- 📅 Fourth and Fifth Saturdays: Open except for announced special events

What Else is Happening

Summer is here and we hope all our members and their family are enjoying themselves and staying cool. With so many activities available, hopefully we are dedicating some shooting time too.

We want to name our club newsletter with something interesting. Everyone likes to see improvements. This is a good time to make an effort here. Appreciate everyone's ideas and suggestions. Our club newsletter is open, if you would like to write about an interesting topic. Let us know if you have a writing talent concerning firearm interests. We all would enjoy other people's prose, and would make our material more interesting. - Bob Renewals this year have been very good. It is rewarding to see how many of our fellow shooters, enjoy RGC. Please keep in mind; renewal time is past; we cannot extend memberships privileges. Existing members may still renew at any time, and we are also accepting new memberships. New membership range cards were mailed out to everyone. PLEASE WEAR YOUR RANGE CARDS!

The club work day we had on 29 June went well. We repaired some target frames, wiring work, clean-up and string trimming. All work was finished by lunch! Great working group with Wayne Broome, Doug Armstrong, Brian Kurzel and Bob Beaver. Super 2019 mowing work! Thanks to the team of Mickey Harwell and Steve Russell. We all like to have ranges neatly mowed, easy to find brass, no bugs or any nasty creatures lying in wait. Lastly our target mesh and steel clangers are being maintained by John Kiwacka. Big Thank you to all the volunteers, for helping keep our property safe, functional and pretty.

Our pistol, .22 bench rest and center fire bench rest matches have been well attended. We had three relays of shooters, for .22 rim fire match in July. Competition is stiff in all our events. The center fire guys, maxed out high scores in both 6mm and .30 match classes. Congrats to Charlie Hall's son Charlie Hall IV and Terry Holladay. It is rewarding for running the matches, with the attendance and level of shooting. I have heard it said, "Some of the most competitive bench rest shooting in the area, is at Tuckertown range. If you can hold your own with these guys, you can do it anywhere."

If hot weather affects you, remember we have cold drinks inside the Coop. In case of an emergency, our street address is located beside Co-op entry door.

During the pistol matches, we had concerns with people trained in first aid. If a health issue or an accident occurred; what can we do? Some members are taking a CPR and Wound First Aid Class from Scott Stiles. It is limited to six people. Hopefully, we can have more first aid training opportunities in the future. - Bob

The Gun Debate:

At the beginning of August, we are again faced with more national tragedies. Sick, demented individuals attacking random people with firearms. Growing up in the 1950's and 60's, this is something I never experienced. I am sure many of us ask, why is this happening with increased frequency today? In my youth, we had firearms at home, the farm, even in car trunk, for target shooting after school. What has changed in America today?

The new media is again targeting firearms and firearm owners as part of the problem. I hate seeing terroristic attacks, as reason to eradicate some our constitutional rights. Our constitution is the America's foundation and our Bill of Rights guarantees your freedoms from Government and tyranny. For the last 243 years it has been very successful. Few other countries have made a contract so well designed. Once we dilute 2nd amendment, which is next? Maybe our 4th or 1st amendment? Who knows where this can go.

We have a right to bear arms. We have a right to defend ourselves. We have a right to sport shooting or put food on the table. We have the right to buy our firearms or conduct any other lawful business without discrimination. We have a right to exist in society, with citizens whose opinions differ from ours. We have a right to elect those who will support firearms and support our cause in the halls of government. I was told, "the U.S. Government is by the people and for the people". The reason we all pay taxes, work and support our families. Also many of us protected these rights by wearing a uniform in both military and in law enforcement

Please write your state and U.S. congressman, not just a phone call or e-mail; but a stamped personal letter. We are all concerned when demented sick individuals kill innocent people. We all must address these issues in a bipartisan manner, without unfairly targeting lawful firearm owners. Weapons are as old as man. A variety of weapons exist, such as motor vehicles, knives, hardware tools, poisons, flammable liquids, explosives, blunt force objects, blow guns even bow and arrows. The list is endless and these cowardly ambush attackers, take advantage of honest decent people. Determined sick hate filled individuals will always find some way to kill and maim innocent people.

Range Safety Tip:

All shooting gear should have good hearing and eye protection. When shooting steel targets, be aware that safety glasses cannot provide protection from sideways back splash. Facing straight toward targets, while others are shooting, will prevent metal from striking sideways between your glasses. Steel targets must be angled down (about 25 degrees) to prevent ricochets. Ones that move (fall or hanging from chains) are also less likely to ricochet.

President's Corner

For my entire adult life I have been a strong supporter of the shooting sports, the second amendment and the NRA. I learned gun safety from my father and some of my most treasured memories are going squirrel hunting with him when I was around six years old. Those early days of small game hunting grew into road trips, deer hunting trips, turkey shoots and eventually match shooting. That all started over fifty years ago, today it seems like it was only yesterday. At an early age I was taught to respect and handle guns safely. I respected the guns not only for safety purposes but also for the fact that most have a significant value. That value is not only monetary but quite often it is a part of family heritage. I would never disrespect or abuse another person's gun or mistreat it. That's as bad as talking about a man's youngest daughter.

To this day I remember bird hunting with my Grandfather and his friends, listening to stories of how their shotguns had been passed down through the family, father to son. My Grandfather had a Model 1901 Remington 12 gauge double barrel shotgun (still in great shape). He told me about hunting during the Great Depression with that gun. I can still hear him talk about how that old shotgun provided a lot of the meat for the family. Sure he had a farm and raised some livestock but they also ate a lot of small game. As time changes so does everything else.

Today you would be hard pressed to find someone who truly needed to hunt for food. Hunting now is more recreational. The history of family guns is long forgotten by Generation X and certainly by Millennials. The baby boomers are probably the last generation that really cares for and understands the Second Amendment. Yes, people of my generation are not only more likely to own and use guns but we also understand that they are the last line of defense against a government gone bad. The founding fathers didn't write the second amendment for hunting purposes but for defensive purposes.

It shocks me to see how many people think that gun ownership is of little importance. Kind of like the signs in gun free zones. The sign with a red circle and a diagonal line over a picture of a handgun, it says one thing to a criminal, "We are all unarmed and defenseless". Easy picking if you are a bad guy. A mentally sick mass killer is not going to let a sign like that stop him. I think the opposite is true, that sign almost guarantees little or no resistance. Does anybody with a brain think that a sign will stop a mad man? I don't understand the logic of the anti-gun people. OK soccer moms, explain this to me. If a mentally sick person is going to attack a group of people, at a mall, at a school, at a church, anywhere, and he knows what the outcome will be, do you really think that the no guns “safe zone” signs are going to protect you? Absolutely not. Those signs will only make his work quicker and easier. He is going to make his attack at a place where he can do the most harm in the least amount of time. So now you are unarmed, defenseless and the only gun in the mall is aimed at you. A good guy with a gun could save your life, but he’s not going to be there because most gun owners are law abiding people and he’s banned from carrying in the mall. Most mass shootings last less than ten minutes so forget the cops getting there quick enough to save you.

Riverside Gun Club Round-Up

I know most of you guys reading this probably feel like I do, I’m not a bad guy and I’m not a psycho about to flip out, so don’t treat me like one. To the liberal left, I’m not your enemy, or better stated, you’re not my enemy, so why do you treat me the way you do? The enemy is a society that has lost its way. So what can we do about the problems? I don’t know, I just hope it’s not too late and our country and culture are not lost, maybe it is.

There was a time when I would say that parents need to spend more time with their children, just get away from the electronics and do something together. I still feel that way but parents need to be adults. We are being saturated by electronic games and media communications to the point that way too many people are addicted to it. I still do believe that parents should get back in church and get their kids in church with them. However we are being attacked by the left if we even talk about school age kids and church in the same sentence. Our whole culture here in the United States is changing right under our nose and we haven’t even seen it happening. The number one thing that everything else depends on is the Second Amendment, if it falls so does everything else. First the Second will be repealed, then the First Amendment and then the Fourth. Then the party’s over.

A lot of young people want Socialism. I am shocked to think that that is even possible. Not Socialism, but the fact that so many people would even consider socialism for this country. How could that possibly be, could it be that our next generation is so deeply in debt, due to college loans and credit cards, that they see no way out? Do they sit in front of their computer and mindlessly play video games until they lose touch with reality? Maybe that’s where mass shooters come from, maybe not, just thinking out loud.

Socialism, live off the government, get everything for free. What a deal if you have had your self-respect drained from you and as a young adult you have nothing left. Do they really believe that a socialist government is the answer? Free food (EBT cards), free housing (section eight), free medical care (Medicaid), early socialism is here already. Now, I do believe in taking care of those who can’t take care of themselves, old folks, the sick, people who are experiencing hard times, but I do not believe in milking the system. Living off of someone else is wrong. Less people working means less tax money in the Federal budget and the country gets poorer and poorer. If we ever become a socialist country it will not last very long. This country is too deep in debt to support it. Just look at other countries that have tried it, pre WWII Germany, Italy, Soviet Union, Cuba, Peoples Republic of China, Cambodia, East Germany (in modern times), Ethiopia, North Korea, Poland, Romania, Venezuela. There are certainly others but you get the picture. And by the way, they all have total gun control, no guns and no defense against a tyrannical government. I bet that those governments would have been different if the civilian population could have been able to protect themselves. But, with no means for self defense it’s off to the gulag, the work camp, or even the concentration camps. Don’t you think that even a left liberal pacifist would want a gun at the last minute, just before being rounded up and put on a train to Siberia? Still want more proof, Google the history of Venezuela, just the last five years. Venezuela was a world power, now they are falling apart in anarchy.

We need to protect the Second Amendment; we need to protect all the Bill of Rights and we need to protect the Constitution. We are in for a fight. I’ve seen Republican vs. Democrat, Left vs. Right, and Liberal vs. Conservative, but after an election, win or lose, people would work together and move ahead. Now the stakes are higher than ever before, and the country is deeply divided. One of the primary goals of the left is gun control. They (the Left) used to say we need “common sense” gun control, now it is an all-out assault weapons ban, limits on what you can buy, no private sales, gun free cities, limits on ammo, no transportation of guns, limits on what and how much you can buy. San Francisco has even declared the NRA as a domestic terrorist group. I guess that makes me a law abiding, taxpaying, God fearing Christian, and of all things a Domestic Terrorist.

The other side hates us; we are called racist, homophobic, misogynist, white nationalists, xenophobic, and don't forget redneck. All I want to be is a Father, Grandfather, husband, and just regular guy. Oh, and I want to be left alone.

Can more gun control, or should I say people control, stop the violence in this country. Probably not. I've got an idea; let's get the law enforcement agencies and the judges to enforce existing laws. Why are so many drug dealers and drug users released from jail? Why are violent offenders released just to continue their life of crime and violence? What about the violent drug dealing gangs? Oh, I know, it's just not politically correct to lock up a drug dealer. It's not a violent crime. Really? So now the left is pushing more gun control on law abiding citizens and looking the other way when it comes to violent crime. Maybe it's because they (the left) like the drug dealers, the gangs and ANTIFA more than law abiding citizens.

What can we do? The number one thing is to make sure we have good politicians in Washington, in state governments and in local governments. Local and state judges are also very important. Even though Judges are supposed to be politically neutral most of them align themselves with one side or the other. It's important to call, write, or email your elected officials and let them know what you expect from them. They work for us not the other way around. No politician should ever tell you or me what we need or what we should want. They should always listen to their constituents. I think most politicians don't have time to listen to the calls or read the email but their staffers do and they know what their voters want. If an elected official is doing the wrong thing he/she should know that they probably will not get re-elected.

Let's not lose what we care about because we are silent, sit at home and let it happen, think about the future of your family.

Ordnance Department

Ordnance Department –

Got some likes about my last article and the opportunity to see a historic rifle. Let's do it again!

How about the US Rifle Model M2 Springfield. I will start, by discussing the DCM. Years ago our government had the (Director of Civilian Marksman) DCM program. It was authorized by Congress on 29 August 1916. This allowed the President to appoint an officer of the Army or Marine Corps to be Director. The DCM assisted in forming civilian rifle clubs, issuing equipment, firearms and ammunition. They kept stock records and accountability for all supplies furnished by the Ordnance Department. DCM approved selling rifles not needed by the government. Gun club and NRA members could purchase from DCM, firearms and accessories, making many a taxpayer citizen very happy. In the last 100 years, they sold Krag, M1917 Enfield, M1903 Springfields, M1 Rifles, M1 Carbines and recently M1911A1 pistols.

Years ago many National Guard and Reserve units often had only short distance practice ranges. Firing full powered rifles indoors or near neighbors was noisy. Sometimes they could only schedule outdoor range time during bad weather. Maybe have a local friendly small unit competitions. As a result, demand to have sub-caliber conversion kits rose. They wanted gallery practice rifles, that made little noise or smoke, accurate up to 200 feet and requires no special cartridge. This rifle had to simulate the current military service rifle weight, function and feel. The economics in marksmanship training using the inexpensive and accurate caliber .22 cartridge, just made sense.

Prior to the appearance of the M1903 Springfield service rifle; marksmanship training was conducted at distances found in combat. Ordnance attempted to develop a .22 rim fire gallery practice rifle. They started trying to modify the Krag. First .22 rifles were bore eccentric at the breech. This made chamber location high at the breech. This caused extraction issues and caused rifle bore to be pointing downward, requiring elevation changes. As more M1903 Springfield were fielded, this required a compatible gallery practice rifle and the Krag was gone.

Ordnance introduced the new M1903 Gallery Practice Rifle. It was more accurate than older Krag rifles. It used a special cartridge that looks like a 30.06 casing, called Hoffer – Thompson. This system allowed .22 rounds can be inserted where the bullet would have been. It had the advantage of using a clip and rapid firing. Army approved using .22 short cartridges and contracts went out for five million rounds. But Chief of Ordnance was not pleased, favoring .22 long cartridges. These rifles looked identical to the .30 M1903 rifles, so they stamped receivers "22" along with other locations.

Over the years, troops complained about cleaning, maintaining the Hoffer – Thompson cartridge holders. Lastly accuracy was still a big problem. After World War One, outdoor small bore matches were increasing. By the DCM National Matches of 1919, Springfield Armory started looking for a better rifle, using the more accurate .22 long rifle cartridges. They experimented with ammunition brands and using four or six groove rifling. The old full length military stock went out, added pistol grip, a five round magazine and attached a good receiver sight. Bolt and receiver closely resembled the M1903 features. By 1922 a new M1922 gallery practice rifle was issued to military units and for private purchase. Springfield Armory manufactured a little over two thousand rifles, making unmodified examples rare today. Improvements continued in cartridge powder, primers and bullets. Manufacturers were changing to non-corrosive and smokeless cartridges. Springfield Armory constantly monitored these improvements and strived for their rifles to give best accuracy. Special nickel steel bolts were specially fitted to each rifle for correct headspace adjustment. Stocks could be ordered in either with military finger grooves, the NRA "sales" had none.

In 1931 Ordnance completed studies to eliminate hang fires and inferior accuracy. They wanted to prevent bolt breakage, improve extraction, ignition, magazine feed and maintain correct head space. Ordnance approved a new bolt assembly and magazine to solve early problems.

Production of the new M2 Springfield rifle began in 1933; with a second variation in 1934. This had the improved bolt, which had an adjustable headspace feature. Adjustment was done by the armory, preventing unauthorized tampering. NRA sales model of the M2 were drilled and tapped for telescope blocks. In the first two years, about 3,800 rifles were manufactured. Oddly no civilian sales rifles were available till 1938. Pre-World War II DCM sales records show the highest M2 serial number was 7660. Springfield Armory lists total production at 11,171 M2 rifles, till July 1942.

This is a rare rifle today, but may be found in excellent condition. These rifles are noted for their great accuracy with issue Lyman sights. I would believe scoped versions, could be even more impressive. However, who would dare modify a rare historic rifle? - Bob

Concealed Carry Tips

Are You Really Protected?

Today we have home, banking, internet, work even church security. Are you protected from legal jeopardy? How well do we know our firearm laws? First, this is not a sales pitch to join USCCA. It is a great organization, but there are others to consider too. If you have a CCW license or not, here is interesting article in the July 2019 Concealed Carry magazine. If you are not a member, I suggest looking into membership at USCCA.COM or similar group. These groups have knowledge, training and insurance to protect us, when we need protection.

Their recent July 2019 article "Keeping On The Right Side Of The Law, by Kevin Michalowski; provoked some thoughts. We carry our own firearms because OTHER PEOPLE ignore the law. Other people are willing to take what is not theirs. Other people have no respect for their neighbors. Other people have no love of truth and justice. We must keep in mind, we are the "good guys". That means to act responsible and earn that label.

Having a concealed carry license or not, every firearm owner should know the law. This is a social contract you entered into when legally purchasing a firearm and especially carrying it as a responsibly armed American. USCCA has made it very easy to learn the concealed carry law in every state. Check out USCCA.com/laws . Laws are constantly changing in North Carolina and elsewhere. Having a firearm means we must follow all the laws. Example a "NO GUN" sign on door, we must respect it or go to another business that values

You vs The guy she tells you not to worry about people's safety. Going on through some states with a firearm can be illegal. Gun owners have been targeted and pulled in these states. We are fortunate that North Carolina has the "Castle Doctrine". It is important to know when you can present and use a firearm for protection.

Riverside Gun Club Round-Up

Responsible gun owners follow the laws, governing the possession and use of defensive firearms. We cannot claim the moral high ground if we are going to skirt the edges of the law. Just like range safety rules, firearm owners must be familiar with the law. No excuse, failure will ruin your life and make us all look bad, in the ever watchful news media. – Bob

Tech Talk – American Rifleman Ladies' Pistol Project 3

For the third time, American Rifleman gathered 68 women, from novice to accomplished, to test 26 carry guns and score them on any categories, such as fit, ease of use, loading, etc. The full article is here:

<https://www.americanrifleman.org/articles/2019/4/8/right-for-you-ladies-pistol-project-3-results/>

By A Nose

When the results of LPP3 were tallied, a new favorite had emerged. The pistol that scored highest in the survey was the new Smith & Wesson M&P380 Shield EZ, introduced in early 2018. The EZ averaged a score of 17.382 out of 18 possible points—nearly perfect on the study's scale. Despite reporting a general dislike of the grip safety, the pistol's other features were so pleasing that the participants believed they could adapt to it with use. "If you're not familiar with what it is, it can confuse you a little bit until you learn," Worthy said, "but it didn't factor into the rating because the other factors outweighed it." She cautions those who might choose a carry gun featuring a grip safety to be very sure of how to engage it before relying on it for self-defense.

As far as the EZ was concerned, "Most were able to rack the slide back very easily, which is something a lot of women struggle with," Jackson said. "They could load the magazine easily and could manipulate the gun without a lot of difficulty." I have the EZ, Sig P238, and G43. An interesting note is that the P238 scored well with small, medium, and large hands.

BIB! Communication!! No Ricochets off Floor!! -- Folks, remember to put targets next to the BERMS!

We sent our range safety orientation packets with our renewals. Please keep these rules in mind and refresh your memory before coming out to shoot. With lots of stuff going on, we forget things, unless they are done often. We encourage everyone to read over their range orientation. You will be surprised how helpful & time well spent.

Share! – Please remember the 30-30 rule. This courtesy applies when there is a conflicting safety issue. Example – member “A” arrives to shoot on the outside range, but member “B” is shooting 100 yd. on the inside bench rest range. Member “A” introduces himself and asks to use the outside range in 30 minutes. Member “B” has time to shoot and prepare to give 30 minute range time to member “A”. Afterwards member “A” gives 30 minutes back and so forth. Members must work together so everyone maximizes their range time without compromising safety.

Reminding members to wear their range badge or have it with them is part of safety. If a member is not wearing their badge. Ask, "what's the first two numbers of the door combo?" If they know, then give the last two numbers.

Safety Reminder: It's important to sight in all rifles outside, from 25 yards; before firing from the inside range benches. Keep in mind, indoor range is bench rest shooting only. Pistol shooting is on the outside ranges. Protect our club and your range, when using a firearm; think about shooting safe.

Shooting Steel Targets - Keep back at least ten yards, when pistol shooting steel targets. Wearing safety glasses is a must! There is a ten yard marker board is on the lower short range. Keep in mind, bullets and fragments can splash back and cause injury when firing up close.

Work-Days and Matches

Volunteers – We need volunteers to help maintain the property and run matches. We have asked before and have gotten some good help. Take time to be a part of RGC, Please volunteer. Helping run matches or doing a workday is fun and you meet some nice people. If you have time on Saturdays, call Bob 336-889-2772. If you have time, during the week and want to help, we have plenty of things to do. Help us make Riverside Gun Club a great place to shoot.

Let's work together to keep it safe, fun and friendly. – Bob

Range Etiquette

As in many other sport activities; we never learn everything. Range etiquette is an acquired skill.

It involves three rules: The "Golden Rule" (do unto others as you would have them do unto you), the Boy Scout's rule (leaving things better than when you arrived) and strictly applied firearm safety rules. These rules are covered in our range safety packet we mailed out.

Our range safety orientation states what type of shooting can be done indoors. After much thought, we realized our indoor range is designed for bench rest rifle shooting only. For several years, there has been no pistol shooting allowed inside. Please keep this rule in mind when going indoors.

Members are responsible for bringing their own targets, target stands & cardboard. RGC has left some old stand/bases for members to put their cardboard & sticks into. These are well used & will not last much longer. We all welcome anyone to build additional bases.

Affiliated with NRA and CMP – Late Summer 2019

Only shoot authorized targets & clean up after yourself, we are not a junk yard. Bring along plastic trash bags for taking away used cardboard, targets, cans & boxes. Left over paper gets soaked, blown around & run over by the mower, leaving others to clean up your mess. This involves all of us. Making a mess starts with one careless person. If everyone follows basic range etiquette, we all will enjoy using the range more.
